NUMB. 5060

SATURDAY, JULY 6, 1745.

Laſt Thurſday Night arrived a Mail from Holland.

Petersburgh, July 19.

THE Baron de Mardefeldt, Envoy Extraordinary from his Pruſſian Majeſty, having receiv'd an Expreſs from his Court, with the important News of a ſignal Victory gain'd by the King his Maſter in Sileſia, has not only notified it to our Miniſters, but has likewiſe demanded an Au- of her Imperial Majeſty, in order to preſent her a large Account, drawn up by his Maſter's Direc- of the ſaid Battle. We are ſtill extremely in the as to the great Deſign that is in Agitation in our cils; and the more ſo, ſince it is poſitively affirm'd, Seven Regiments which have receiv'd Orders to , are to be employ'd on the Frontiers of Aſia; for, or againſt whom, no body is clear-ſighted gh to determine.

Turin, June 22. A Corps of French Troops, conſiſt- of 12 Battalions, are actually in full March towards conetta, in order to penetrate that Way into the ley of Stura; which News gives us no Pain at all, our Territories on that Side are perfectly well pro- His Majeſty has divided his Army into three reat Corps; the Firſt is intended to oppoſe the ench Army, which acts ſeparately, the Second is to ke Head againſt the Troops of the Infant Don Philip, caſe they ſhould aim at forcing a Paſſage into Pied- , without joining the Count de Gages; and the ird Body will march directly into the Tortoneſe, e to join the Auſtrians under the Command of Ge- Schulemberg, who is already advanced to Novi, has diſpatch'd his Aid du Camp to Genoa, to de- a Categorical Anſwer from the Senate, whether will adhere to their Neutrality or not, that we may ter know what Courſe to take, and who to con- as our Enemies, or our Friends.

Genoa, June 26. On the 22d the Infant Don Philip out for Final, from whence his Royal Highneſs will ably proceed to Savona: His Military Cheſt con- three Millions of Pieces of Eight; and the ſeveral Corps which his Army conſiſts, are all of them in Marching that the Campaign will open without delay.

Vienna, June 30. Count Leopold Kinski arrived here the 25th from the Army in Bohemia; with Ad- , that the Van Guard of the Pruſſians having made very brisk Attempt, in order to force a Paſſage over the Elbe, were repulſed with great Loſs. Her Majeſty likewiſe made the following Military Promotions; viz. General of Artillery, Meſſieurs Winceſlaus, Wallis, Botta, Lowitz, Chanclos, Leopold Daun, Prince Salm, Brown, Schulemberg, and Palavicini. General of Horſe, Count Wirtzburg. Lieutetants General, Meſſieurs Helfreich, Lowenſtein, Keil, d'Ollone, Lucheſe, and de Fin. Ma- General, Meſſieurs Wezel, Marulli, Starenberg, Rembrand, Elverfeld, Cujas, Coſa, St. Andrie, Sinceri, Lorentini, Erochs, Benedict Daun, Radicati, Soyer, Kol- rath, and Oſtein. Her Majeſty has likewiſe given Regiment of Thungen to General Anclau. Yeſterday, about Five in the Morning, her Majeſty and the Grand Duke went together to hear Maſs; after which, Royal Highneſs took Leave of her Majeſty, in order put himſelf at the Head of the Army on the Rhine. This Morning Prince Lobkowitz ſet out for the Army Bohemia, where he is to be preciſely on the ſame that Field-Marſhal Count Traun was during the Campaign, and we hope will have the ſame Succeſs.

Francfort, July 8. The Grand Duke arrived on the of this Month in the Army of the Allies; that Army continues ſtill in the ſame Poſition, as does alſo that of the Prince of Conti, whoſe Head Quarters are Steinheim, and who fortifies with the utmoſt Dili- ce the Poſts of Hanau and Hochſt. We have ſent Deputation to compliment his Royal Highneſs, and uld give him more open Teſtimonies of our Affection Eſteem if the French were not in our Neighbour- d, and drawing nearer and nearer this City every ; which gives the Inhabitants infinite Pain, from Apprehenſion that they may come to Blows with Auſtrians in our Streets. They talk of transferring ir Head Quarters to Offenbach, and there is not the Appearance of their retiring. The Heſſian Troops Bavaria are actually releaſed, and they are beating up for Recruits for them. It is ſaid that thoſe Troops, ſome Thouſands in the Service of the Biſhop of rtzbourg and Bamberg, will ſpeedily receive Orders join the Army of the Grand Duke; but it is thought the deciſive Blow will be given firſt, and his Royal Highneſs elected Emperor; which is an Event the Partizans of the Houſe of Auſtria ſeem not to doubt.

Bruſſels, July 12. The Count de Kaunitz received Yeſterday in the Evening a Courier from the Grand Duke of Tuſcany, with the important News, that his Royal Highneſs was arrived in the Combined Army of the Empire, and that the Election was fixed for Saturday the 17th Inſtant. The Duke of Cumberland, and the reſt of the Generals of the Allied Army, have ſent hither their heavy Baggage, and made the other neceſſary Diſpoſitions for giving the Enemy a warm Reception, if, after all their Boaſting, they are inclined to give them Battle; our Troops ſhewing a warm Deſire to fight, notwithſtanding the known Superiority of the French. This Moment we hear that the Army of France is already at Ghent; and that the moſt Chriſtian King has declared he intends, after reducing Aeth and Mons, to end the Campaign, by making himſelf Maſter of this Capital, and being preſent at the performing Te Deum in our great Church of St. Gudula, before he returns to Verſailles. Tho' theſe are only Reports, we are in the utmoſt Conſternation here, eſpecially ſince Count Konigſegg, the Generals Chanclos and Campbell, and other Officers of the Allied Army, are arrived here, having left their Troops but ſeven Miles off. We know not what to think of this, unleſs a Reſolution has been taken to poſt the Forces behind our Canal, in order to cover this Place. The French have ſtopped the Mail, and taken out all the Paris Letters, in order to hinder us from knowing what has already reach'd our Ears; viz. That the Corps, conſiſting of 33 Battalions, and 40 Squadrons, which it was ſaid Count Lowendahl had marched, in order to form the Siege of Oudenarde, is, in fact, gone to the Relief of the Prince of Conti; but we hope he will come too late, and that the Grand Duke will have done his Buſineſs in Time, and force the French Army to repaſs the Rhine.

Hague, July 13. The States of Holland and Weſt-Friezland reſume their Debates To-morrow. All the Foreign Miniſters are in very great Agitation here; ſome tell us that a Peace is in Agitation; and others, that the War is like to become more general. The laſt Expreſs from the Allied Army brought Advice, that a Skirmiſh had happened between a Corps of their Troops, commanded by Lieut. General Molk, and a great Body of French Horſe and Foot: The former, it ſeems, had Orders to throw themſelves into Ghent; which, notwithſtanding the Oppoſition made by the Enemy, their great Superiority, and their having with them a conſiderable Train of Artillery, they did, by forcing their Way thro', Sword in Hand. It is alſo ſaid, that five Dutch Squadrons that were ordered to Dendermond, have done as much, notwithſtanding the Corps they had to deal with was double their Number. The beſt News we have at preſent is from Italy, where the King of Sardinia's Forces have deſtroyed ſo many of the Enemy's Magazines, that it is very doubtful whether the Spaniſh, Neapolitan, and French Troops, will be able to find any Subſiſtence, even at the opening of the Campaign; and it is certain, that the farther they advance, the greater muſt be their Diſtreſs. This Moment a Courier is arrived from Flanders, with a diſmal Account of the prodigious Contributions levied by the French, and of their extending themſelves over all the flat Country. It is impoſſible to expreſs the Fatigues which the Generals of the Allies undergo: We may gueſs at them however from hence, that, on the 8th Inſtant, his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland had not been in a Bed for three Nights. We hope the next Poſt will bring us better News.

'They ſuppoſed her to be Homeward-bound, ſhe being 'foul and deep laden; with whom they exchanged three 'Broadſides, when the Exeter's Bowſprit was ſhot thro', 'which obliged them to bring to, and ſecure their Fore- 'maſt in the beſt manner they could: Then the Spaniard 'made Sail from them, and fired two Guns to Leward. 'Tis a pitty there had not been two Engliſh Privateers 'together, that they might have made their Fortunes. 'The Exeter had Two Men kill'd, and Ten wounded.'

LONDON.

It was reported very confidently Yeſterday, that a very great Perſon had received authentick Advices from Antwerp, that the Combined Army on the Rhine had attacked and defeated the Prince of Conti, killed 9000 and made 5000 Priſoners; upon which the French found themſelves ſo much weakened, as to think proper to repaſs the Rhine, and retire towards Alſace.

By the Dutch Mail of Yeſterday, there are Accounts from Bruſſels, dated July 12, N. S. which plainly ſay there has been no general Engagement; but that the late Alarm was occaſioned by the advancing of the French to Dienſe, and from thence towards Ghent, to cover their detaching a Corps under Count Lowendahl to the Prince of Conti's Army, for whom it appears the French themſelves are in Pain.

A Sloop from Oporto is arrived at Plymouth, who left the Portugal Convoy, Homeward-bound, the 1ſt Inſt. 10 Leagues S. W. of the Lizard, under the Ludlow-caſtle Man of War; and brings Advice, that they had a certain Account at Oporto, that on the 10th of May Commodore Warren had taken at Cape Breton a Battery of 32 Guns, and hoped to be ſoon Maſter of the Place.

We hear, that in the preſent Circumſtances of the Affairs of Europe, the Chief of ſeveral of the Highland Clans, as well Lords as Gentlemen, (animated by their Zeal for the Publick) have offered their Service, at the Head of their Vaſſals, to his Majeſty, to oppoſe the increaſing Power of France; and to raiſe Regiments in ſuch manner as his Majeſty ſhall be pleaſed to order. Several of the Nobility and Gentry of England have alſo offered to raiſe Regiments for his Majeſty's Service.

This Week died at his Lodgings at Homerton, John Ord, Eſq; Nephew to Robert Ord, Eſq; Member of Parliament for Malpas. The Deceas'd was Mayor of Newcaſtle.

The Beginning of next Week his Excellency Prince Sherbatow, Ambaſſador from the Court of Ruſſia, ſets out from his Houſe in St. James's Street, in order to embark for Holland, in his Way to Hanover.
